

CIT Director and NIH CIO Andrea Norris Recognized for Creating Impact by FedHealthIT

Thursday, October 25, 2018

On Thursday, Oct. 25, at the 2018 Leading for Impact in Federal IT and Consulting, Women in Leadership Conference, CIT Director and NIH Chief Information Officer Andrea Norris was one of 30 women honored with the 2018 Leading for Impact, Women in Leadership Award.

Recipients of this award are nominated and chosen by their industry peers for creating impact and leading organizations in the federal technology and health consulting industries. Common themes among the chosen recipients of the 2018 Leading for Impact, Women in Leadership Award included the following:

- Guiding the federal technology and health consulting industries through impactful leadership
- Ensuring transformation and modernization is at the heart of change
- Driving the change management required to initiate the next positive disruption in federal IT and health consulting

A full list of awardees can be found on the FedHealthIT website.